PEEL

I was named after a killer of Indians.

Peeling away pale skin, hoping to find the red underneath

Trauma like an infested blanket,

Burrowing down, holding residence in memory

Mission schools, hard labor, separation.

Stolen identity, no ceremony.

Pale white father, in name only, without a heart

Married to an Indian woman

I was named after a killer of Indians.